The New EU Bauhaus as a common ground for the Architectural Design Competition + The EU Platform

alice-cae.eu

The close relation between ADCs and the aims of the NEB

ADCs by their nature aim at finding the most sustainable, beautiful + inclusive design solutions while attracting a large number of designs raising the chance to get the most efficient and innovative solution.

There is a close relation between ADCs and the New European Bauhaus:

Doing ADCs across borders makes it possible to also reach architects from different perspectives and design backgrounds,

The accessibility of competitions across the border is still not so common.

Arch-E: A Common European Project Application with the aim of

- Strengthening the capacity of architects with a view to internationalizing their work
- and raising awareness about the potentials and possibilities of ADCs in politics and among the general public

(European) Policy Considerations:

The project is a pro-active approach of the architectural profession to overcome barriers in the cross-border provision of architectural services and thus an important argument in relation to the deregulation discussion with the European Commission.

(European) Policy Considerations:

The project promotes the everyday implementation of “Baukultur”, sustainability and inclusion through the improved and expanded use of and access to architectural design competitions and thus contributes to the achievement of the objectives of many European policies, such as the Green Deal , the Work Plan for Culture etc. and above all the New European Bauhaus

It offers further possibilities such as

- possibility of easy selection of judges via the website,
- support in finding ADC consultants in the area,
